PW Perspective Rebranding + Website Reconstruction

In 2020, PW Perspective, an independent news start-up in Northern Virginia, underwent a rebranding for which I served as project lead. My team and I saw the website fully redesigned along with the brand. Over the course of this project, I managed a team including our web master, design specialist, an intern, and contractors in order to ensure the new site represented the company, its vision, its mission, and its newly developed brand.

I also personally redesigned the company's logo social media profile photos, and banner.

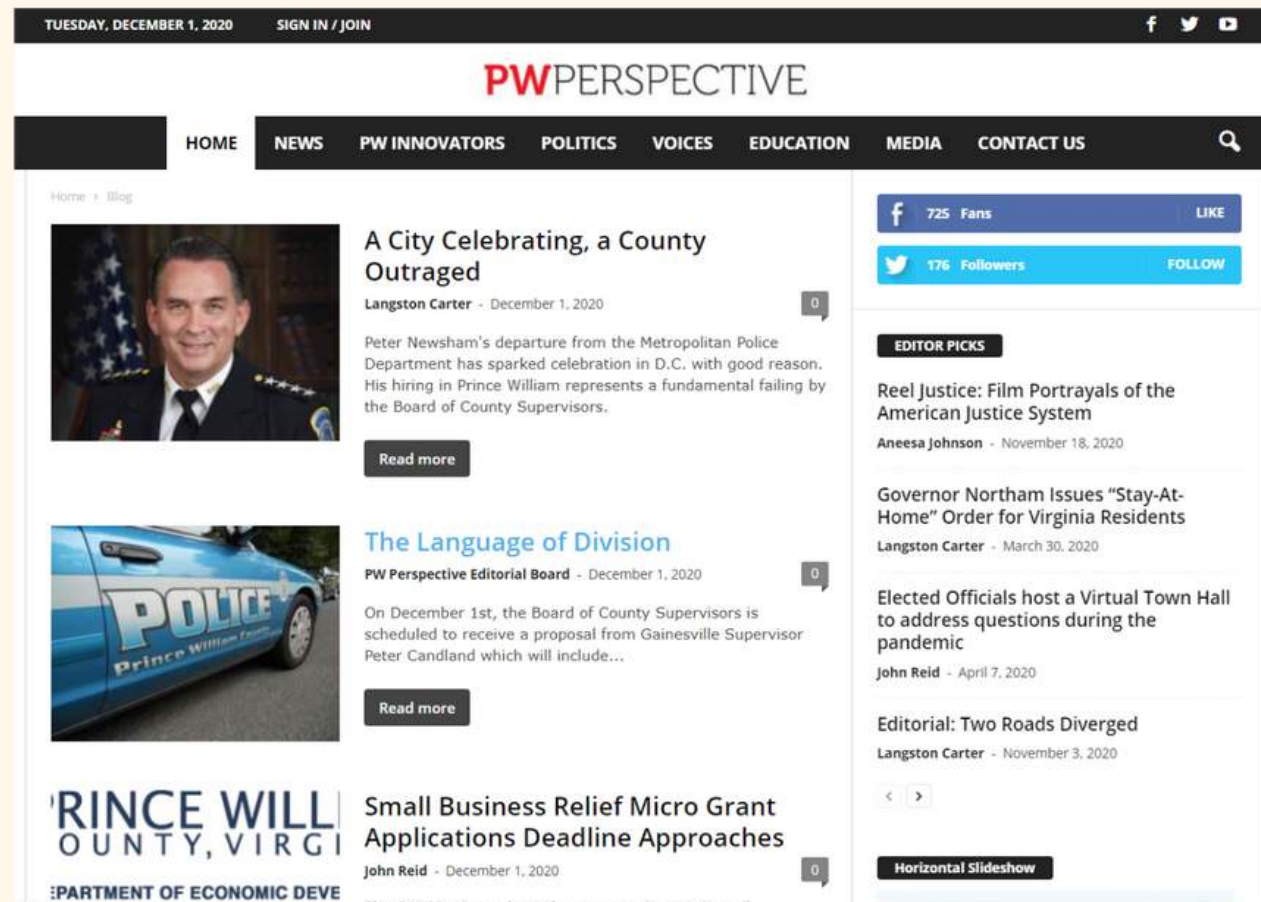

The new branding represented PW Perspective's position as an anti-racist, independent, Black-owned publication, utilizing pan-African colors to highlight its focus on Black and brown communities.

The website's new format also allowed for a more user friendly, engaging experience that drew readers in while also allowing adequate advertising space for sponsors.

PW Perspective Rebranding + Website Reconstruction

Part of the project was taking the company's old logo displayed below and developing a new concept that better represented the brand. Ultimately, I developed multiple variations that combine the brand's identity with the appearance of a more traditional outlet. This design also allowed for more color variations.

Before:

The old logo consists of the letters "PW" in a bold, red, sans-serif font, followed by the word "PERSPECTIVE" in a black, all-caps, serif font. The entire logo is set against a white rectangular background with a subtle drop shadow.

After:
